

Comprehension

Read the passage carefully. Answer the question.

Plastic bags, bottles, cups, take-away food containers, and wrappers are just some of the rubbishes you will see scattered all over our beaches. It is terrible, and we need to take action. We must change our habit of making such an awful mess on our beaches.

Why do we throw our rubbish on the beach? Are we too lazy to walk a few steps to the garbage bin and put the rubbish in the right place? There are signs put up with big, bold colours, that ask people not to litter yet people do not notice them. Some people think that the beach does not belong to them. So, they do not care enough to keep it clean. As a result, the rubbish left behind increases beyond belief.

More bins need to be put out across the beach. These need to be emptied more often. People should encourage each other to put rubbish in the bin. If you see someone littering, say to them politely, "Please put your rubbish in the bin."

Leaving rubbish everywhere is bad for our environment. The rubbish goes into the sea and kills marine animals. Take action now and always put your rubbish in the bin!

A. Write short answers in your notebook.

1. Name any three types of rubbish found on the beach.
2. Why do people throw their rubbish on the beach?

Comprehension

Read the passage carefully. Answer the question.

Last night's thunderstorm was scary! I was glad to be with my grandma. It wasn't until the next day, when Grandma drove me home, that I realised something wasn't right. Mummy met us outside our house. She looked tense and upset. "I'm sorry, Dilip," began Mummy. "During the storm, Max got scared. I tried to get him to come inside, but he just ran. I couldn't catch him. He's... he's gone." Oh no! Not Max! I'd had him since he was a puppy—a little cuddly bundle of brown fur. "Your father and I searched everywhere we could think of this morning. But there was no sign of Max anywhere," she said. Still, I refused to think the worst. Grandma and I kept looking for Max. "Where's Max's favourite spot?" Grandma asked. "He loves to hide his bones near the old woodpile. Why?" I replied. "Well," said Grandma, "if I was scared and alone, I would want to go somewhere familiar." So, we walked down to the old woodpile and Grandma was right! There, curled up amongst the wooden logs, was Max. He was covered in mud and shivering in fear. But at least he was safe. I carried Max in my arms and Grandma wrapped him in her warm, grey sweater. We took him back home.

A. Answer the following questions.

1. Who had Dilip stayed with on the night of the storm?
2. When did Dilip realise that something was wrong? How?
3. Who was Max? What happened to him?
4. How did Mummy try to avoid this from happening?

Comprehension

Read the passage carefully. Answer the question.

Once, a long time ago in Africa, a farmer was about to pull up his sweet potatoes to take to the market. He reached down to pull out a large potato. Suddenly he heard a loud voice. "Oh, no you don't! All the time I was growing, you hardly gave me any water and now you want to pull me out and sell me? I don't think so!" "Who's talking to me?" The farmer looked around startled. "Silly farmer," his dog replied. "It was the sweet potato." The farmer stared, his eyes like saucers. He had never heard of a talking dog OR a talking sweet potato. He reached up to pull a branch from a tree to protect himself. "Oh, no you don't!" said the tree. "You have enjoyed my shade for years and never once did you say thank you! Go away!" The farmer ran to tell the king. The king did not believe him and told him to go away. After the farmer left, the king sat in his favourite chair.
